A global technology company faced a pressing question: How could they ensure that new Eloqua users received the necessary training without distracting seasoned users from their own tasks? Here's how we helped.